Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Exchange advice and suggestions in communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- Have you asked for help lately?
- Do you like it when people ask you for advice? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can ask for help.
- I can talk about recent actions and routines.
- I can ask for favors and give advice.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa and Sally talk on the phone. Vanessa gives Sally advice about side effects. What is it?

* "Side effects" are reactions to medication.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Sally: Hey, V. How are you feeling?

Vanessa: Hi, Sal. I'm okay. My thumb is still swollen. The swelling should go down in the next few days. I've taken some turmeric. My Aunt Nelly gave me some ideas for alternative therapy. They seem to be working.

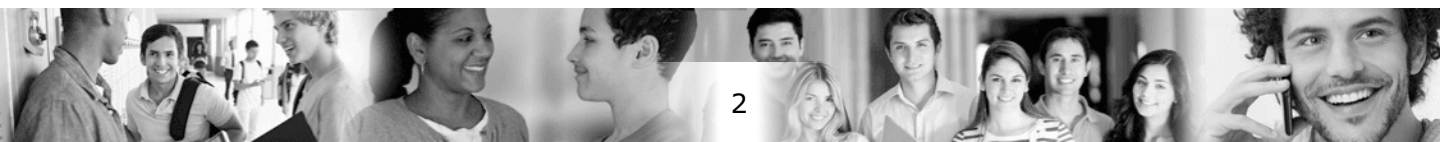

Sally: That's good to hear. My back has been aching since we went bowling. I've been lying down for days now. I can't focus on my work, so I'm taking a sick day.

Vanessa: That's too bad. Are you taking any medication?

Sally: Yeah. The pharmacist recommended some pills that are a combination of a muscle relaxant and anti-inflammatory. It seems to have helped for now. Could you tell me how to prepare the ingredients for the homeopathic remedy you're using? Maybe I can use it after these pills are finished.

Vanessa: Sure. I'll text them to you. You ought to try it out sooner rather than later. It's really helped me! If I were you, I would stop taking the pills. You never know what the side effects might be.

Sally: Okay, V. Would it be okay if you texted me? I'll think about it.

Let's Practice!

Learning Points

Present Perfect Continuous vs. Present Perfect

You use the Present Perfect tense and the Present Perfect Continuous tense to talk about a past action or an action that began in the past that is connected to the present in some way.

Tense	Structure	Use/Meaning	Example
Present Perfect	Subject + has/have (not) + past participle Question word + has/have + subject + past participle	- to talk about experience - to emphasize the result of an action	I've taken some turmeric.
Present Perfect Continuous	Subject + have been + v-ing Question word + have + subject + been v-ing	- to talk about a single activity that lasts a long time - to talk about an action that is repeated over a long period of time - to emphasize the action - when a long activity has just stopped	My back has been aching since we went bowling.

- You use FOR to talk about how long an action has been happening (a week, 2 days, five hours, six years etc.).
- You use SINCE to talk about when the action started (2010, Monday, she was a child)

Examples:

- It's really helped me!*
- I've been lying down for days now.*
- I've taken some turmeric.*
- My back has been aching since we went bowling.*

Learning Points

The Second Conditional - Talking About Hypothetical Situations

You use the second conditional to talk about unreal or imaginary (hypothetical) situations in the future.

For example:

If I had a million dollars, I would buy a car.

Do you have a million dollars? No.

Is it possible to suddenly get a million dollars? Not really.

What would you do if you had a million dollars? Buy a car.

You use the Simple Past verb + would

IF	Conditional	Result
	simple past	would + base verb
If	I married Peter,	I would be happy.
If	it snowed next July,	I would be very surprised.
If	I were you,	I would be jumping up and down.

Remember to use a comma (,) after the IF clause.

In conversation, it is common to use contractions. (I would = I'd)

Examples:

- If I were you, I'd be jumping up and down.
- I'd get that checked out if I were you.
- If we went home, we'd need to have some movies to watch.
