Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Sally: Hey, V. What have you been doing lately? I haven't seen you in ages.
- Vanessa: Hi, Sally. I've been so busy with the restaurant. I haven't had any free time since I started there. What have you been doing?
- Sally: I've been spending a lot of time with my family. We've been eating out a lot and trying to catch up. I've also started an exercise regime ...
- Vanessa: Oh, yeah? How long have you been doing that?
- Sally: I've been training with a personal trainer for a couple of weeks.
- Vanessa: Wow! A personal trainer! That's cool. I can see you've toned up a little.
- Sally: Well, let's see if I can beat you at this game. I haven't been bowling in years.
- Vanessa: Me neither! Marco and I have been talking a lot about our relationship.
- Sally: Has anything been decided?
- Vanessa: Not really ...
- Sally: How long have you guys been dating?
- Vanessa: We've been trying to date for about six months. It feels like six years!
- Sally: Well, have you been practicing your arm swing?
- Vanessa: Not at all! This won't be much of a game, I'm afraid.

Learning Points

Present Perfect Continuous vs Present Perfect

You use the Present Perfect tense to talk about a past action or an action that began in the past that is connected to the present in some way.

You use Present Perfect Continuous tense to describe:

- a single activity that lasts a long time, and
- an action that is repeated over a long period of time.

These continue up to the present.

You can use the Present Perfect tense to talk about experience.

When you use the Present Perfect tense, you think about the past and present together. There is some connection between what happened in the past and now.

For example:

I have learned English = I learned English in the past and now I can speak English.

He has bought a painting = He bought the painting in the past and now he has a painting.

You can use the Present Perfect Continuous tense when a long activity has just stopped.

To emphasize the action, use the continuous form.

- We've been working really hard for a couple of months.
- She's been having a hard time.

To emphasize the result of the action, use the simple form.

- I've made fifteen phone calls this morning.
- He's written a very good report.

Subject	has/have	been	verb +ing
She	has	been	talking on the phone for an hour.
They	have	been	working there since 2010.

- You use FOR to talk about how long an action has been happening (a week, 2 days, five hours, six years etc.)
- You use SINCE to talk about when the action started (2010, Monday, she was a child)

Examples:

- I've been training with a personal trainer for two weeks.
- I haven't had any free time since I started there.

Learning Points

Talking About Social Activities

When you talk about social activities, you often use the gerund form of a verb.

The gerund form is the noun form of a verb.

You form the gerund by adding ing to the end of a verb.

Gerunds are often used to talk about activities.

Social activities are things you do with other people.

Verb	Gerund	Example
garden	gardening	I enjoy gardening on the weekends.
bowl	bowling	I have never been bowling.
swim	swimming	I've been swimming every day for ten years. watch	watching	I like watching TV.
cook	cooking	I'm taking cooking classes.
